RECREATING

THE MARVELS OF PAST

In the world of automobile restoration, the main character is the donor car. Key Garage's standardized "nut and bolt" restoration philosophy ensures that every aspect of the car is renewed, blending inspiration from the past with modern functionality. As the car is reassembled, it takes on a new identity, a testament to the team's craftsmanship and a tribute to the heritage of classic automobiles. The donor car's journey is one of transformation and rebirth, a story of precision and care.

CRAFTED. RESTORED. PERFECTED.

The chassis is the foundation upon which a vehicle is built, and Key Garage understands the importance of restoring it to its former glory. The restoration process begins with sandblasting and careful measurements to ensure accuracy. Any damage or curvatures are corrected, and rusted or damaged parts are renewed. The chassis is then ready for electrostatic painting to recreate its original appearance. The goal is to bring the chassis back to its factory condition, but with Key Garage's expert craftsmanship, the resulting condition can often surpass its original state.

EXPERIENCED MECHANICS TAKE CHARGE

MECHANICS

TAKE CHARGE

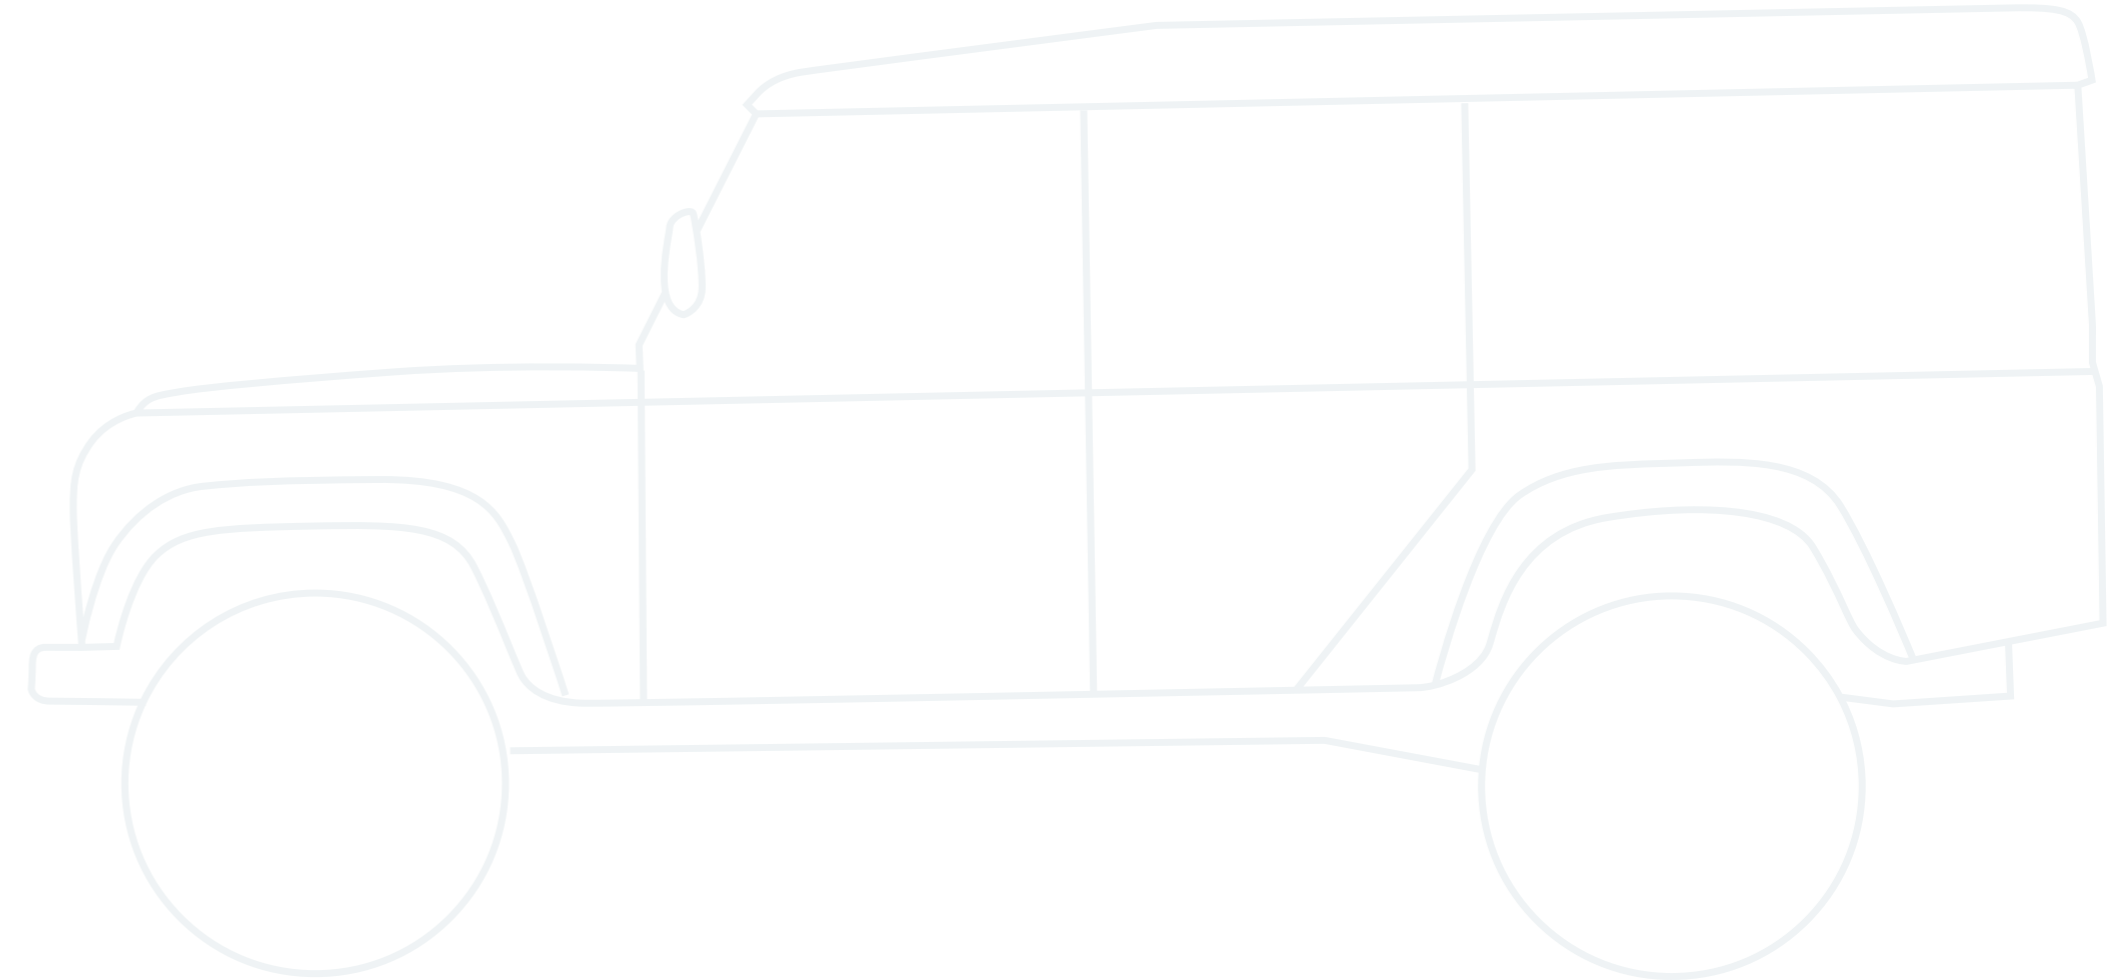

The chassis, which will be separated from the body for a while, is in the hands of the mechanics. All parts which have been disassembled and restored in experienced hands, will be combined with brand new parts and the power unit of the vehicle will be back on the chassis. At this point, customers can choose to add their personal touch to the vehicle with a range of customizations, or trust Key Garage Selection's expertise to create a unique and timeless masterpiece. Either way, the result is a one-of-a-kind vehicle that stands out on the road and captures the essence of automotive history.

ICONIC LAND ROVER SILHOUETTE

The restoration team deems the body parts of the disassembled vehicle as having reached the end of their lifecycle. As a result, all panels are replaced with new 1.5 mm aluminum ones. After the mechanical workshop finishes its part, the vehicle takes shape again with the new panels. Millimeter adjustments ensure that the silhouette of the iconic Land Rover is accurately formed as the body parts come together..

FINAL TOUCH: PAINTING.

The next step is painting. The vehicle's body panels, having been previously assembled, are disassembled once again and prepared for the painting process. The panels are meticulously painted with our high-quality Glasurit products, ensuring a flawless finish.

Once painted, the body parts are ready to be reassembled onto the chassis. Along with this process, a new OEM electrical installation is installed to power new headlights, signal lights, taillights, and more. This installation guarantees the car runs like a factory-standard vehicle.

THE WONDERFUL INSULATION COMBINATION

After the mechanical and painting works, we move on to the upholstery stage. The first step is to provide good insulation, which we achieve through our unique combination of Silent Coat and Basf Basotect materials.
